Appendix to Nils Petter Gleditsch & Ida Rudolfson: Are Muslim Countries More War-Prone?
Conflict Trends, 03/2015. Oslo: Peace Research Institute Oslo (PRIO), www.prio.org/Publications/Publication/?x=8645.

Due to the constraints imposed by the format of the Conflict Trends series, we had to limit the number of figures and tables. More detailed documentation and additional tables follow here, along with additional literature references. We also take the opportunity to thank Matthias Basedau, Isak Svensson, and a number of colleagues at PRIO for useful comments on earlier drafts. Any remaining errors are our responsibility alone.

Table A.II Religion and absolute and relative incidence of intrastate armed conflict after the Cold War, 1991–2012

Majority religion	Number of countries	Number of countries in conflict	%	Independent years since 1991	Years with civil war	%
Buddhism	8	4	50	176	56	32
Christianity	108	33	31	2,284	249	11
Folk Religion	2	0	0	44	0	0
Hinduism	3	2	67	66	33	50
Islam	49	27	56	1,060	254	24
Judaism	1	1	100	22	22	100
Unaffiliated	6	1	17	130	1	1

This table corresponds to Table I in the Conflict Trends 03/2015, but for a shorter time period. Sources: Data on majority religion from Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002) and Themnér & Wallensteen (2014). Data on years since independence from Gleditsch & Ward (1999). Table A.II has fewer states than Table II because some states are coded as ending before 1991: Tibet (1960), German Democratic Republic (1990), Zanzibar (1964), Republic of Vietnam (1975) and People's Republic of Yemen (1990).

Table A.III Opposition groups in all intra-state conflicts, 1946–2013

This table includes all opposition groups in intra-state conflicts listed in the PRIO/UCDP list of armed conflicts 1946–2013. Countries with Islam as the majority religion in Table A.I are marked with a hashtag (#) in front of the name. The list includes entities that are no longer independent countries (such as Hyderabad). Insurgent movements classified as Islamist are marked with an asterisk (*). Many of the movements are entered with abbreviations – for the full names, see the UCDP Actor Dataset at www.pcr.uu.se/research/ucdp/datasets/ucdp\_actor\_dataset/.

Sources: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents based on a variety of internet sources. We would welcome comments and corrections to this coding.

This figure corresponds to Figure 2 in Conflict Trends 03/2015, but for all armed conflicts rather than just civil wars. Sources: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III.

Figure A.2 Armed conflicts which take place in a Muslim country and conflicts where the insurgents are Islamists, calculated as a share of all internal armed conflicts, 1946–2013

This figure corresponds to Figure 3 in Conflict Trends 03/2015, but for all armed conflicts rather than just civil wars. Sources: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III.

Sources: Majority religion as in Table I. The armed conflicts are plotted based on data from the PRIO Conflict Site Project (Hallberg, 2012). A conflict that lasts over several years is plotted only once.

Source: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III. No Islamist insurgencies are recorded in our dataset prior to 1975.

Source: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III.

Source: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III.

This figure corresponds to Figure 4 in Conflict Trends 03/2015 except that the conflict data have been averaged over three-year periods. Sources: Pew (2012), UCDP/PRIO dataset, cf. Gleditsch et al. (2002), Themnér & Wallensteen (2014), and our own coding of Islamist insurgents in Table A.III. UCDP has not yet published a best estimate for battle deaths in Syria in 2013, so we have used their low estimate. All other battle deaths data used here are best estimates. For the PRIO battle deaths data, see Laciná & Gleditsch (2005) and www.prio.org/cscw/cross/battledeaths. For the UCDP data, see www.pcr.uu.se/research/ucdp/datasets/ucdp\_battle-related\_deaths\_dataset/.

Sources: Pew (2012), UCDP and PRIO datasets on battle deaths, cf. note to Figure A.7. In the Korean War (1950–53) Turkey participated in a broad coalition of 16 countries on the South Korean side. We have omitted this war from the list of wars involving Muslim countries. No Muslim countries participated in the Vietnam War.

Iraq	30 428 000	99	2	2013	2013

Among the ten countries with the largest Muslim population, only three had an on-going civil war in 2013. None of the remaining seven had experienced a civil war in the last ten years, although three had smaller internal armed conflicts. The three countries with civil wars account for a total of 18% of the world's estimated Muslim population in 2009, while the seven others account for 49% of all Muslims.
